HONG KONG REMAINS WORLD'S FREEST ECONOMY

Hong Kong Commissioner to the United States Clement Leung welcomed the publication of the 2017 Economic Freedom of the World report which once again ranks Hong Kong as the world's freest economy. Co-published by the Cato Institute, the Fraser Institute of Canada and more than 70 think tanks around the world, the report measures economic freedom (levels of personal choice, ability to enter markets, security of privately owned property, rule of law, etc.) by analyzing the policies and institutions of 159 countries and territories. "The report affirms Hong Kong's commitment to upholding free market principles and the rule of law which sustain a healthy business environment," said Mr. Leung.

FINTECH SANDBOX INITIATIVE ANNOUNCED

The Hong Kong Monetary Authority, the Securities and Futures Commission and the Insurance Authority announced their sandbox initiatives to facilitate the development of FinTech in Hong Kong. Secretary for Financial Services and the Treasury James Lau, welcomed the initiatives, pointing out that this will help reinforce Hong Kong's status as a vibrant FinTech hub. "It is always our policy priority to encourage financial institutions to develop and adopt Fintech. Sandboxes provide a testing environment for Fintech innovation, and help expedite the launch of new Fintech products for better customer experience," he said.
